GROMYKO RAPS PLANS TO END BIG POWER VETO

Russian Ambassador Warns
Against Any Revision
Of UNO Charter

IRAN SEEKS ATTENTION

Iranian Representative Asks
About Approach To United Nations

LONDON, Jan. 18.—Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko denounced proposals to wipe out the big power veto in the United Nations security council today as Iran sought a way to force UNO consideration of its quarrel with Russia.

Gromyko told the assembly that any revision of the UNO charter would be dangerous and might lead to serious consequences. He stressed the importance of the security council, particularly in controlling the proposed atomic energy commission, and condemned efforts to give the small nations equality with the big powers.

Seyed Hassan Taghizadeh, head of the Iranian delegation, conferred with UNO executive secretary Gladwyn Jebb on the Soviet-Iranian dispute just before Gromyko spoke.

U. S. announcement said Taghizadeh discussed "technical arrangements in connection with a possible approach by the Iranian government to the United Nations on the subject of the situation in northwest Iran."

The Iranian government has instructed its delegation to present the UNO with its first major controversy, which might involve Russia's use of the veto power.

Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand said he would use every opportunity to seek elimination of the veto power.

Yugoslavia joined Iran in bringing the first specific problems to the UNO assembly. The Yugoslav delegate, Edvard Kardelj, appealed to the UNO for support of Yugoslavia's territorial claim on Italy. It involves the area around Trieste on the Adriatic. Yugoslavia needs it, he said, to guard against the reappearance of remnants of Fascism on his country's frontiers.

An Argentine issue also was dropped in the assembly's lap by the International League for the Rights of Man. It charged in a memorandum to the UNO that the present Argentine government had no right to UNO membership because it was "one of the most sinister type—Nazi-Fascist."

Both Russia and Yugoslavia emphasized that the last vestiges of Fascism were not eradicated, and warned the UNO that wiping out of the remnants was one of its jobs. Both nations vigorously supported special privileges for the big powers.

Gromyko lavishly praised the security council as an instrument to maintain peace. But he ignored the Iranian issue. Russia is a permanent member of the security council, and during the early

FRANCE GIVEN BIG 3 PROMISE

U. S., Britain, Russia Say
They Will Not 'Arbitrarily
Reject' Suggestions

LONDON, Jan. 18.—The big three have promised France that they will not "arbitrarily reject" peace treaty recommendations made by other nations at the forthcoming Paris peace conference, it was announced officially today.

The promise to France was made on Jan. 13 in a note by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes to French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault. The note was approved in advance by Britain and Russia.

The three nations making the commitment to France revised the Potsdam agreement at the recent foreign ministers' conference in Moscow to eliminate France and China from the actual drafting of (Continued on Page Two)

'PUT' SANDLES TO MANAGE 1946 OHIO STATE FAIR

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18.—The Ohio state fair scheduled for August 24-30 will be under the management of Bryan P. Sandles, assistant state agriculture director.

Sandles' appointment was announced by state agriculture director John M. Hodson last night at the closing session of the 21st annual meeting of Ohio fair managers.

Sandles was manager of the junior fair for many years. The Myers J. Cooper trophy for the best 1945 fair was awarded to Ross County.

Mrs. Don A. Detrich, Bellefontaine, was re-elected as executive secretary by the fair managers. Also re-elected were Walter J. Buss, Wooster, president; E. W. Lampson, Jefferson, and Lawrence P. Lake, Cincinnati, vice presidents, and B. U. Bell, Xenia, treasurer.

LT. HOGE FAILS TO GET RETIREMENT BOARD JOB

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18.—Naval Lt. Wilson E. Hoge knew today that he would not regain his former job as secretary of the Public Employees Retirement System of Ohio unless he took his battle to court.

Members of the retirement system board adjourned yesterday without a vote on the issue after listening for four and a half hours to Hoge's pleas for reinstatement.

GERMANS USED 5 NEWSPAPERS IN ARGENTINA

U. S. Presents Evidence
Of Subsidization Of Papers During War

THREE 'ANTI-AMERICAN'

John Cabot Says Supporters
Of Peron Against U. S.;
More Charges Coming

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 18.—The United States embassy presented photostatic evidence today that five Argentine newspapers were subsidized by Germany during the war.

Copies of telegrams found in Germany were released by charge d'affaires John Moore Cabot along with a statement that described three Argentine papers now functioning as "anti-American."

Cabot said two of the three papers were a continuation of two of the wartime group while the third was a recently founded paper which took over employees of some of the subsidized group.

The papers described as "anti-American" were La Epoca, La Tribuna and Democracia, all supporters of Col. Juan D. Peron's presidential campaign.

The five papers found to be subsidized were: El Pampero; Cabildo; El Pueblo, a morning daily connected with the Catholic church; the picture magazine Ahora; and the German language daily Deutsche La Plata Zeitung. Cabot said information showed La Epoca was a continuation of El Pampero and La Tribuna a continuation of Cabildo.

El Pueblo and Ahora are the only ones still publishing under the same names. The La Plata Zeitung, which was the Nazi organ in Argentina, now is published under the name Die Freie Presse.

Cabot said that on many previous occasions the Argentine government had helped the Axis propaganda sheets obtain newsprint.

"That is one of the reasons, he said, 'why relations between Argentina and the United States are not as cordial as relations should be between the two American republics.'"

The telegrams also linked the Argentine news agency—Andi—with the distribution of German propaganda in Argentina.

The messages, found by the Allies in Germany in April, 1945, covered a period from March 9, 1942 to July 6, 1943. All were signed by Erich Otto Meynen, who was German charge d'affaires in Argentina.

Several of them stated the subsidized papers supported the neutrality policy of President Ramon (Continued on Page Two)

MOSCOW, Jan. 18.—A visitor dropping in at public school Number 290 in Moscow can witness the following scene twice weekly:

When the bell rings 40 pigtailed seven-year old girls carrying dolls troop into Olga Khanova's school-room. When teacher Olga signals the girls rise and begin reciting in English the nursery rhyme "Hush A Bye Baby." They not only recite spiritedly in fairly good English but act out the rhyme.

Changing their dolls the girls break into another verse, "Three Little Kittens Who Lost Their Mittens," and other Mother Goose rhymes.

Olga's class is the Soviet Union's most successful experiment in teaching English to seven-year old children as part of a campaign to teach every educated Russian at least one foreign language.

PRESSURE MAY END OCCUPATION

'Secret Plan' For German Government Provides For Peace Treaty

BERLIN, Jan. 18.—The so-called secret plan drawn by the economic section of the U. S. military government in Germany predicts public pressure at home will demand withdrawal of U. S. occupation forces in the Reich in five to 10 years.

A well-informed source said today the plan recommended that some four-power check be maintained for 25 to 50 years until it is evident the German nation "genuinely has conceived the principles of democracy and a desire for peace has been constituted."

Top officials of the economics section denied earlier reports that the plan had been submitted to the United States control council. Earlier published reports said the plan advised withdrawing occupation forces in five to 10 years and the signing of a peace treaty with the new German government.

Actually, informants said, the plan merely was based on two major suppositions:

1. The German people will have formed an "acceptable autonomous government" in the next five to 10 years and a peace treaty will have been signed with Germany;
2. During this period at least (Continued on Page Two)

Betty Grable To Brighten Arctic Polar Bear Hunt

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Jan. 18.—Betty Grable generated a hot sweat among 25 Alaskans today by accepting their invitation to go hunting polar bears with them in the Arctic north.

All the Hollywood heatwave asked in return for hiding in a fur parka and shooting an anti-freeze rifle up at Point Barrow, 30 miles north of the Arctic circle, was the right to keep the bear-skin.

The hunters put up a bag of gold for expense money if Miss Grable would help them shoot a bear for the Anchorage winter carnival. It was only an overnight hunt, they said.

Nobody mentioned that a Winter night lasts six months. For that matter, nobody thought she would be interested.

Miss Grable's prompt reply gave the sub-zero thermometer its first glimmer of warmth since New Year's eve.

"Sure, I'd like to go," she said from Hollywood within a matter of minutes. "I haven't been pho-graphed on a bearskin rug since I was that big."

The hunting expedition was born when somebody proposed getting a polar bear's head as a centerpiece for the carnival table. The rough-and-ready boys said they would try it, but thought an epic of the frozen north would be better with Betty Grable in it.

Residents raised funds to send the expedition up to Point Barrow in a transport plane. The hunters said they would put up the extra gold dust to pay Miss Grable's way up from California.

Then somebody with a light meter said it showed the aurora borealis didn't provide sufficient light to register in foot-candle readings during January. The only natural light at Point Barrow during any of the 24 hours is moonlight or the aurora borealis.

That, said some of the hunters, made sighting a rifle a difficult if not impossible task. The expedition is set to go in a few days, anyway.

"Who cares about a bear if Betty's along?" the hunters asked.

Anderson And Mason Also On Committee; Company Gives
Stand On Controversy

John C. Goeller, president of council, Friday announced the appointment of three members of council to serve on the newly-created public utilities committee.

The new committee composed of George Crites, chairman; Ray Anderson and Donald Mason will make preparations for the city to take over its own water plant and concern itself with the operation of the plant.

Meanwhile a letter was received Friday by Tom Renick and Joseph W. Adkins, Jr., special city attorneys, from the attorneys of the Ohio Water Service Company to the effect that the company will not drop its appeal case unless the time in which the city has to pay for the plant is not extended.

The city was originally given six months from October 15, the date the price was set, in which to purchase the plant. After the company made its appeal, however, the city asked for an extension of the time in which the city had to pay for the plant.

The company said it could not agree to any extension of the original time set. Under the common pleas court order, the city would have to have the plant paid for by April 15.

City attorneys, however, said the city had to have the extension or else the city would not have time to float the necessary bond issues. The extra time was made (Continued on Page Two)

SEN. WALCUTT TO STUDY PLAN FOR VET SETUP

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18.—State Senator Roscoe R. Walcutt, chairman of the Ohio Postwar Program Commission, today was authorized to investigate proposals by Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler and veterans organizations that Ohio should have a state department for veterans affairs.

Samuel R. Fairchild, Jr., 27, Columbus, rehabilitation officer for a local American Legion post, told the commission that such a department was necessary. He said it would coordinate and expedite service to veterans.

Commission member Paul M. Herbert disagreed. He said such a state agency would impede rather than accelerate handling of veterans affairs, since county service officers now work directly with the veterans administration.

Walcutt was authorized to find out what work a veterans program commission established by the legislature has been doing.

Five Circleville young men and one young man from New Holland reported to Fort Hayes Friday for pre-induction physical examination.

Senate Delays Action On Strike Legislation; House May Receive Bill

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The responsible senate committee today temporarily abandoned strike-prevention legislation and there developed a movement to force the issue to the senate floor for immediate consideration.

The outlook for action was slightly better in the house. Its labor committee agreed to take a vote by next Tuesday on a motion to send fact-finding legislation of some kind to the house floor.

In the senate, however, the labor committee suspended consideration of fact-finding legislation until Jan. 25. Until then the committee will consider proposals to increase minimum wage rates under an agreement to dispose of that question on Jan. 24.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D., Miss., has pending a senate motion to discharge the labor committee from consideration of the fact-finding bill sponsored by President Truman to prevent strikes. He is expected to seek today to bring that motion to a vote. Under senate rules, however, no vote on that question may be had after 2 p.m., when consideration of a fair employment practices bill must be resumed.

MARCH OF DIMES 'POSTER BOY' SETS FAST PACE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 18.—The March of Dimes "poster boy," six-year-old Donald Anderson, of Primeville, Ore., set a rapid pace today for the local drive to aid infantile paralysis sufferers. Not so long ago Donald himself was stricken by the disease, but the enthusiasm with which he went about his public appearances here left no doubt that his recovery was complete.

Besides visits to polio victims and the crippled children's guild, Donald was to attend a benefit luncheon and make personal appearances at theaters today. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talent scouts already have shown an interest in the youngster and tonight Donald plans to take a fling at radio. He will be interviewed by Ralph Hubbell, Buffalo sports broadcaster.

Donald's arrival yesterday was highlighted by his discovery of the siren-operating device on the fire department staff car assigned to him and his mother, Mrs. Edward S. Anderson. While the two rode from central terminal to a downtown hotel, Donald delighted himself and stopped traffic by keeping the screaming siren wide open.

The Andersons will conclude their visit here tomorrow with a trip to Niagara Falls, N. Y.

UNION ACCEPTS PLAN PROPOSED BY PRESIDENT

Compromise Proposal Said
To Call For 18½ Cent
Raise To Workers

OTHER STRIKES THREATEN

Violence Also Continues As Meat Strike Continues
Over United States

BULLETIN

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Benjamin Fairless, president of the U. S. Steel Corp., announced today that he could not accept President Truman's compromise proposal for settlement of the Steel wage dispute.

By United Press

A break appeared near the nation's labor crisis today as an authoritative source disclosed that the U. S. Steelworkers Union (CIO) had decided to accept President Truman's formula for settling the steel wage dispute.

The President reportedly recommended an 18½ cents an hour increase after the negotiations between industry and union leaders had ended in deadlock.

There was no immediate indication of the reaction of the U. S. Steel Corp. to Mr. Truman's settlement proposal.

Elsewhere the nation's industrial crisis grew more serious with new strike threats and violence for the second day of the packing-house workers strike.

Mike Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union of Greater New York (CIO) said his union was prepared to call a strike of 32,000 subway, bus, trolley and elevated railway workers throughout the city to halt sale of three city owned power plants to the Consolidated Edison Co.

At Kansas City, Kansas, members of the Independent Packing house union were escorted for the second straight day through a CIO picket line into the Swift and company plant there.

Police succeeded in opening the picket lines after three unsuccessful attempts. Meanwhile the resumption of wage talks between Ford Motor company and the CIO Auto Workers was postponed until Monday at the request of the union.

Elsewhere in the current labor crisis—idling nearly a million workers—there were these developments:

1. A fact-finding board began an inquiry into a three-day strike of packinghouse workers, which has brought the nation face-to-face with a meat famine.

2. Striking CIO Electrical Workers offered to submit to arbitration a wage dispute which has shut down 78 plants of General Electric, Westinghouse and General Motors.

3. The membership of four unions of Western Electric employees was polled on whether to walk out in sympathy with 17,000 other telephone workers.

4. The Ford Motor company, which yesterday announced it had topped 1946 production schedules, appeared near a wage settlement with the CIO auto workers union.

Mr. Truman submitted his wage proposal yesterday following a third unfruitful conference at the White House between Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the U. S. Steel Corp., and CIO President Philip Murray, whose steelworkers have scheduled a nationwide walk-out for next Monday.

Leaders Confer

Murray went immediately into conference with top union leaders, including the heads of the powerful auto and electrical unions whose disputes undoubtedly would be affected by a steel settlement.

Fairless left for New York to consult other steel industry spokesmen before the noon deadline.

The President's formula provided for a steel wage increase one cent under that recommended by a government fact-finding committee for 175,000 striking General Motors employees. Also, it represented a boost of about 17.1 per cent, less than the 18 per cent proposed for the oil industry.

Would Set Pattern

If accepted the increase probably would set a pattern for settlement of mass walkouts in the meat and electrical appliance industries.

UNION ACCEPTS PLAN PROPOSED BY PRESIDENT

Compromise Proposal Said To Call For 18 1/2 Cent Raise To Workers

(Continued from Page One) for study of the meat strike late yesterday after an unproductive conference in Washington between government and industry officials and representatives of nearly 300,000 striking packinghouse workers.

At the first of a scheduled series of conferences with labor Secretary Lewis B. Schwellenbach, the unions indicated they were standing pat on wage demands.

Electric Strike Seen

A company-wide strike against Western Electric company, manufacturing subsidiary of American Telephone and Telegraph, appeared inevitable. Leaders of the independent union said it was a foregone conclusion that the company's 50,000 non-striking employees would vote for a strike within the next two days.

In another telephone dispute, a strike of 3,000 Washington operators was settled last night and normal service resumed today. The work stoppage had been called to protest what operators called "sweatshop" working conditions.

Ford Settlement Expected

Ford Motor company officials disclosed yesterday that the company was bettering its 1946 production schedules giving rise to the belief that a settlement might come soon between Ford and the CIO auto workers.

Union and Ford representatives met yesterday in an amicable two-hour session and a UAW spokesman revealed that a "top drawer secret" concerning wages had been discussed.

Meanwhile, the house labor committee agreed to vote by next Tuesday on President Truman's bill to legalize fact-finding boards in labor disputes. Sen. James O. Eastland, D., Miss., introduced a resolution whereby the senate would begin immediate consideration of a companion measure.

EIGHT MILES A MINUTE IS NEW SPEED RECORD

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—Builders of super-speed airplanes had a new speed mark to better today after a jet-propelled Lockheed fighter plane flew 361 miles from San Francisco to Los Angeles in 42 minutes, 33 seconds, an average speed of eight miles a minute.

Army Pilot Lt. Claude L. Wolford, Los Angeles, took off in the stock-model shooting star from Mills Field, San Francisco, at 1:08 p. m. yesterday.

Bucking an 18-mile-an-hour headwind, Wolford shot the plane to 16,000 feet, maintained that altitude for only 20 minutes, and then began a long gradual dive toward municipal airport here.

He arrived at 1:49:23, cutting a third off the old time.

The former record was set only last week by another Lockheed plane, a four-motored Transcontinental and Western airlines Constellation, in 64 minutes.

The fighter plane was a regulation Army model, unchanged for the speed dash.

The flight was officially timed by the National Aeronautic Association. An association spokesman said the run was recorded from the time the plane began to roll on the runway at Mills field until it flashed past the control tower at Los Angeles municipal airport.

111 JAPS ADDED TO WAR CRIMES LIST BY ALLIES

TOKYO, Jan. 18.—Allied headquarters ordered the Japanese government today to arrest 111 additional suspected war criminals, bringing to more than 700 the number arrested for alleged war crimes.

Heading the latest list were seven generals, chief of whom was Gen. Nakaji Tachi, former chief of staff at Japanese headquarters in the Philippines. The other generals included:

Maj. Gen. Saburo Watanabe, commander of the third war shipping unit at Singapore from March to August, 1945; Gen. Kyotake Kawaguchi, who was at Parang, Mindanao, in the Philippines in 1942; Lt. Gen. Resuke Isogai, commander of the 10th division and chief of staff of the Kwangtung army in 1938 and former governor of Hongkong during the occupation; Lt. Gen. Sadaaki Kagesa, commander of the 38th division; Lt. Gen. Takashi Sakai, commander of the 23rd army; and Lt. Gen. Hideo Tanaka, commander of the 6th division.

charge of the committee no strike prevention bill is likely to reach the senate much before Feb. 1. When the committee resumes consideration of that issue next week it expects to hear testimony from Charles E. Wilson, of General Motors, and R. J. Thomas and Walter Rother, of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) who have struck the automotive giant.

Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric, Sewell Avery, president of Montgomery Ward Co., and a representative of the department store workers union have been asked to appear later in the week.

There is some chance of faster action in the house where the labor committee refused yesterday by a tie vote to report for floor consideration a revised version of Mr. Truman's fact-finding proposals. As the President outlined it, his fact-finding boards would be able to examine corporate books to determine ability to pay higher wages. He also wanted the bill to include a provision for necessary by the water company's appeal, the city attorneys said Bonds could not be issued while the case was still in litigation, they said. The bond issue will be a large one and it will take some time to get it through, they added. The city attorneys added that they felt that the court will grant the six months extension, necessary to give time in which to float the bonds. The extension, if granted, would be dated from the time of the termination of the appeal.

The water company objected to the extension in its letter as follows:

"This matter of the extension of the time to issue a very great burden upon the company. Until such time as the city actually pays for the property, the company has no legally binding assurance whether the property will or will not be finally taken. In the meantime, the company is beset with all the problems of a going business, and sustains the business burdens and legal burdens of a public utility company.

"It has always been the company's policy to serve its customers to the best of its ability. This requires that service to existing customers must be kept up at all times and improved when necessary. It also requires that when members of the public not previously served want and become entitled to service, the company must stand ready to furnish it to them (within the limits of the restrictions which are imposed upon the company by the city under the franchise.)"

"In discharge of its obligation to render adequate service, the company has, since the trial ended last June, already expended nearly four thousand dollars in addition to its Cincinnati plant. Also, still other persons urgently need water service. The company wants to furnish it. Furnishing such new service and maintaining the proper standard of service to existing customers will require the expenditure of additional thousands of dollars in the next few weeks or months.

"Do not conclude from anything herein that the company is unready and unwilling to keep on contesting this matter as diligently and as long as it may see fit to do so. It hasn't given up hope that this forced loss of its property may yet be prevented somehow by fair and legal means. Nor has it ever ceased to believe that it can do a better and more economical job of furnishing water service in the City of Cincinnati than could be furnished through public ownership.

"We will use as much time as may be necessary to try to prevent the ultimate loss by the company of its property, but we believe the kind of time extension you propose is unfair and illegal. In the meantime, we would be pleased to hear from the city any suggestion which it may have to offer, stating how the interests of the company and of the public can be protected until the time comes when the city shall either have taken over the property which existed last June, or shall have given up or lost its right to do so. Specifically, what undertaking or assurance can and will the city give to the company that the company will be reimbursed for additions and improvements to its plant heretofore and hereafter made which became or shall become necessary in order to enable the company to render adequate service during this interim period?"

treaties with the former enemy states of eastern Europe.

The Byrnes note was made public in London, Paris and Washington.

Most of the deputies of the council of foreign ministers were here, and were expected to resume the drafting of treaties early next week.

At Moscow the big three decided to exclude France and China from council meetings dealing with treaties for Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland. The United States would be excluded from the drafting of the Finnish treaty.

The Moscow plan called for a peace conference by May 1 in Paris. At it the 21 nations which had military roles in the European war were to discuss the big three draft of treaties. After the conference the big three would draft the final treaties, except that France would be considered a signatory to the Italian treaty.

When the Moscow decisions were presented to France, Bidault asked for clarification and assurances would be more than a facade. His note on the subject was published at the time he wrote it.

CHURCHILL WILL NOT BE PEARL HARBOR WITNESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The Pearl Harbor committee today rejected six to two a motion to invite former British Prime Minister Winston Churchill as a witness.

The motion was made by Sen. Homer Ferguson, R., Mich., who wanted to ask Churchill about his Atlantic conference with the late President Roosevelt in August 1941.

Ferguson and Rep. Bertrand W. Gearhart, R., Calif., were the only two members of the 10-man joint congressional committee voting in favor of the motion.

The two other Republicans on the committee—Sen. Owen Brewster of Maine and Rep. Frank B. Keefe, of Wisconsin—voted "present."

FARM BUREAU DELEGATES ATTEND MEETING HERE

English Is Popular In Red Schools

adults, take English courses through Moscow's state correspondence school and trade unions and factory offices offer classroom instruction. The demand for English textbooks, classical literature and periodicals is never satisfied locally.

English and American classics such as the writings of Shakespeare, Dickens, Cooper, London, Longfellow and Hemingway are read as eagerly as the Russian classics of Pushkin and Tolstol.

Beginning with nursery rhymes for elementary schools and Shakespeare for higher levels, the demand for books in English is unlimited. The Russians are learning to speak English well as they read because the schools devote much time to phonetics. Even Olga Khanova's first-grade pupils learn elementary phonetics. As a result there is a need for books about phonetics and the history and theory of the language as well as grammar books and the classics.

In most schools foreign language instruction begins in the fifth year although the curricula in larger cities was changed recently to include foreign languages at the beginning of the third year.

The campaign to teach every educated Russian at least one foreign language began in 1932 when the central committee issued a decree making the study compulsory. The movement has grown by leaps and bounds and, if continued at its present rate, it would not be rash to predict that within another generation every high school graduate will be bilingual.

English is by far the most popular foreign language. French, German and Spanish are next in order. Even before the war English easily showed other languages into the background.

Before the Communist revolution French was the favorite language of the aristocracy while German was the principal language in commercial circles. Now every ambitious Russian wants to learn English and the authorities give them every encouragement.

Out of 2,000 students at the Moscow state institute for foreign languages, which trains teachers and translators, 800 specialize in English. The same proportion is true at technical schools, high schools, universities and red army academies. A knowledge of at least one foreign language is a prerequisite to graduate from army schools.

stages of consideration of the Iran dispute, the Soviets would have to refrain from voting as one of the primary parties concerned.

L. S. St. Laurent, the Canadian delegate, indirectly answered the Russian and Yugoslav opposition to charter changes. In an address prepared for later delivery he said: "The achievement of our army may be long require some amendment of the charter. Changes may be needed if we are to give effect in a changing world to the purposes and principles of the United Nations."

He appealed to the delegates to keep their minds open on the amendment question because future tasks of the UNO "may well be on a scale which will necessitate some express abatement of the narrower conceptions of national sovereignty."

St. Laurent referred specifically to the big five veto, but reminded the delegates that the charter itself was a "firm pledge on which each one of us can implicitly rely that the big powers will use their privileged position only as a sacred trust for the whole of mankind."

DELUXE LABOR SQUABBLE IS OTHMAN TOPIC

Pilots Demand $18,500 A Year In Diamond-Studded Controversy

BY FREDERICK C. OTHMAN
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—It becomes my flabbergasted duty today to tell you about aviation's diamond-studded, 21-carat, emerald-crusted, platinum-trimmed labor controversy.

As members of the American Federation of Labor, the pilots want $18,500 a year, plus expenses, for flying four-engine airplanes across oceans. This works out to $355.76 cash a week for these union laborers, plus meals, hotel rooms, laundry, uniform pressing, and tips when they're at work.

Their bosses claim $12,750 a year is about right. Nobody's arguing about the expenses.

That's the background. Now I want to take your sweaty hand and lead you into the red-draped hearing room of the civil aeronautics board, Commissioner Harlee Branch presiding, jammed tight with the executives of the 13 U. S. air lines and the head men of the Air Line Pilots Association, the labor union demanding the wage raise.

The argument, as in most labor strife, is complicated. The insults, as in most such hearings, are magnificent. The government at the moment is trying to decide whether a special committee from all the air lines can negotiate wages. The pilots want to argue with each air line separately. When the CAB settles that, they'll fight about pay.

The red-haired union lawyer, Daniel Carmel of Chicago, said the 13 air lines are a trust, trying to gang up on the pilots. Those were his words. When he said them, somebody behind him hissed. "This is no place for snakes," he snapped.

He said that if the air lines got their way in the negotiations, there'd probably be a strike. As he kept on talking, the air line chieftains laughed.

"I wish you'd order those airline fools to keep quiet," he told Commissioner Branch; the commissioner said the audience should do its laughing quietly. This sounded like a standard labor-management conference, all right. Only the speeches got so full of Blackstone that I edged around the fringes of the crowd, trying to discover why a pilot wants $18,500 a year. The answers were interesting.

A pilot isn't afraid of flying over the water, nor does he consider the work especially dangerous. Flying a four-engine airplane calls for a man who knows his stuff, but it is not particularly arduous. But—and here seems to be the nubbin of the case—these big, beautiful new liners fly at 300 miles an hour.

The little two-engine jobs which have shuttled across this country for years loafed at less than 200 miles per hour. The pilots figure the faster flying machine, the less work there'll be for pilots. They claim their wages should go up in direct proportion to the speed of the plane.

There you are. It's a labor squabble de luxe, all right, but the fundamentals sound familiar.

1,600 WOMEN IN LINE FOR JOB

Wisconsin Farmer Wants Wife To Help Milk His 14 Cows

GRANTSBURG, Wis.—Farmer Arthur Binstengel has 14 cows that need milking and 1,600 women who want to marry him, he revealed today.

Mrs. Binstengel of 1946 will depend, among other things, upon which of the candid candidates wants to help him milk the cows. The wifeless Solomon of Burnett county, who has been divorced twice, has promised to pick one this year. This is his new year's resolution.

The mating matter began last year when Binstengel, a husky 44-year-old farmer, found he was too busy operating his 610-acre farm to go courting. So he wrote his congressman.

Rep. Alvin E. O'Konski was short on wives but long on advice. "Be sure she's honest," he replied. Artful Arthur advertised. "You must be honest," he said in his ad. It was a relief, he said, to discover that there are 1,600 honest women in the world. They answered from New York to Chicago, from Georgia to Alaska.

One who urged him to write soon, because "I just can't wait," described herself as a very good woman. "I weigh 120 pounds and can lick my weight in wild cats—verbally or otherwise," she confided. "I had a man, but he was no good. So I got rid of him."

But the trouble is, Binstengel complained, that most of the fancied fiancées are close-mouthed about their age and weight.

He said he isn't fussy. All he asks of a wife is that she must:

1. Be between 30 and 42 years old.
2. Not weigh more than his 195 pounds.
3. Be between five feet and five feet eight inches tall.
4. Be truthful. (his congressman said so.)
5. Not smoke or drink.
6. Be healthy.
7. Be friendly.
8. Not be a gold-digger.
9. Have a sense of humor.
10. Be willing to take good care of Arnie, his six-year-old son by a former marriage.
11. Be willing to help milk 14 cows.

RCAF TESTING AIRCRAFT FOR GREAT BRITAIN

MONTREAL, Jan. 18—The Royal Canadian Airforce is staging for the British government rigorous, large-scale tests of aircraft in sub-zero Winter conditions, it was learned today.

The tests, involving eight types of planes, are scheduled to last until next May. They are being carried out in 70-below-zero temperatures encountered at 30,000 feet above northern Alberta.

The plane types are the new Rolls-Royce jet-propelled Meteor fighter, two types of Spitfire fighters, the Mosquito medium bomber, two types of Lancaster bombers, and Lincoln and Halifax bombers.

The two-engine Mosquitoes and the four-engine Lancasters already have been "winterized" to a certain degree as a result of tests last year in Alberta. An informant said none of the other types has had to operate extensively in the temperatures and conditions now being encountered.

Thomas A. Edison perfected the first filaments for the incandescent electric light while at the mining town of Encampment, Wyo., according to reports.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

ART: "Saw you at the movies last night, Judge. That was quite a weekend that alcoholic went through, wasn't it?"

OLD JUDGE: "Sure was, but I'm afraid most people won't really understand it."

ART: "What do you mean, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Simply this. That poor chap was really a sick man...not just a drunk. Studies by famous psychiatrists and the medical profession show that alcoholism is not caused by a craving for alcohol...it is usually the result of some deep-rooted social, physical or emotional condition. If that fellow had not turned to alcohol for escape, he would have turned to something else."

ART: "Are there many that get in that condition, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "Fortunately not, Art. Scientists at a great university have stated that approximately 95% of the people who drink do so sensibly. Only 5% are immoderate at times. In that 5% is the small number known as alcoholics. And the beverage distilling industry which does not want a single person to use its product immoderately, is cooperating fully in the solution of this problem."

PIGGY LAMBERT MAY QUIT AS PURDUE COACH

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 18.—Ward (Piggy) Lambert, veteran Purdue university basketball coach, said today that he may quit his head coaching job.

Lambert, who coached 11 Big Ten champions in 20 years at Purdue, admitted that there was "more than a little truth" to rumors he was relinquishing his position after this season.

He declined to discuss his future plans, commenting only that if he did resign, it would not be because of his health. Any announcement, he said, would have to come from Athletic Director Guy "Red" Mackey.

Mackey said he had "no comment at this time."

LARGEST BOMBER TIRE

AKRON, O.—The largest bomber tire in the world—designed for use on a plane whose range makes the B-29 look like a "Jenny"—was under construction by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. when the war ended.

It measures 110 inches in diameter, 44 inches across the beads and 38 inches from one sidewall to another. The complete assembly weighs 2,600 pounds. The tube alone weighs 250 pounds.

FIRE DAMAGES HIALEAH AFTER BIGGEST DAY

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 18.—Racing was expected to go on as scheduled today at the Hialeah track despite a fire which destroyed 600 bleacher seats and provided a stirring climax to the biggest day in Florida turf history.

Origin of the fire which broke out shortly after the fans departed from yesterday's opening day program, had not been determined. That it would at least temporarily reduce crowds was likely. A record opening day crowd of 28,949 poured a record total of $1,249,864 through the mutual windows, surpassing all previous Florida betting records. The largest previous opening day crowd at Hialeah was 16,531 fans at the 1942 inaugural and yesterday's attendance was only 592 short of the all-time track record of 29,541 at the 1941 Flamingo day stakes.

THE BIG COWS PRODUCE MORE

The big cows in each breed produce the most milk and produce it most efficiently.

To keep any herd in highest production requires a steady and consistent feeding program . . . In buying commercial feeds be sure to get the right feed for your needs and then feed it regularly in the proper amount according to the volume of milk given by each cow.

SUPPLY PLENTY OF WATER. Each cow needs 25 to 40 gallons of water per day to keep in full production. Be sure plenty of water is available for your milking cows at all times.

HORMEL SALARY PLAN UNIQUE AMONG PACKERS

Meat Workers Do Not Worry About Seasonal Slumps, Are Paid Regularly

AUSTIN, Minn., Jan. 18.—Nearby 4,500 employees of the George A. Hormel Packing company went to work today with the assurance of steady work and regular weekly pay checks regardless of seasonal slumps, market fluctuations or livestock droughts.

Hormel's wage plan is one of the "most unique in the nation. It provides that pay checks be uniform in size throughout the year, with employees working longer hours during rush seasons and shorter hours in light seasons.

The plan was based on one goal: steady employment and steady income. It was prompted by the desire of Jay C. Hormel, company president, to eliminate the lean days that used to result from lay-offs during seasonal lows in the meat packing industry.

Hormel introduced his "steady employment plan" in several departments in 1931 and put it on a plant wide basis in 1933.

This is how the plan works: Statistical studies showed that a nearly constant number of animals was handled annually. This resulted in the spacing out of pay checks and reaching an understanding with the employees that they would work longer hours during rush seasons and go home early in light periods.

Quotas then were set, based on past performance and negotiation between the management and the employees. If a department exceeded its quota, the men received "production checks," an extra payment above their "straight time" earnings.

A joint earnings plan was instituted in 1938 in addition to the annual wage program. This provided for a fund to be set up from net earnings. The fund is shared by the employees and the stockholders, being divided between them on a percentage basis at the end of each year.

BANCOHIO CORPORATION OFFICERS ARE SELECTED

James R. Coppins has been elected president of Bancohio Corporation, of which the Second National Bank of Circleville is an affiliate, at the annual meeting of the stockholders and directors in Columbus.

John A. Kelley, retiring president, was named chairman of the board of directors. Others named to the board were Mr. Coppins, Edgar T. Wolfe, Robert T. Crew, Richard H. Wolfe, Preston Wolfe, O. W. Powers, H. V. Anderson and Fred E. Heppel, who was elected vice president.

PROGRAM CUTS CRIME

CHICAGO—Juvenile delinquency decreased in Birmingham, Ala., during the war, in marked contrast to the rise in other cities, the American Public Welfare Assn. has reported.

The report said this was due, at least in part, to the "character building" program conducted by Birmingham schools since 1923.

Juvenile delinquency has decreased steadily ever since the program was started, the report said.

JURY O.K.'s WHIPPING

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (U.P.)—Modern educators may frown on it, but a whipping in school still can be justified, a circuit court jury has decided.

Parents of a 10-year-old girl brought suit against Mrs. Betty Benham, teacher of the W. K. Kellogg agricultural school, asking $5,000 damages. The teacher said the whipping was necessary to maintain discipline, and the jury agreed with her.

REMARRIAGE LASTS DAY

MT. CLEMENS, Mich. — John Deamet, 50, married the same woman twice, but the first alliance lasted a bit longer than the second. His original venture endured 28 years, ending in divorce. Then he remarried, but told Judge James E. Spier that this marriage lasted only one day. He said he gave his wife $10 for a hair-do, but charged she spent it at a tavern. The divorce was granted.

PACK STREET IN MEAT PACKER STRIKE RALLY

JAMMED IN FRONT of one of New York's big meat-packing houses, hundreds of striking packers are addressed by Meyer Stern, CIO district leader, as the nation-wide walkout of some 335,000 workers threatened to tie up the nation's meat supply. In Kansas City and Chicago, the nation's biggest packing centers, huge picket lines were reported thrown around plants with thousands marching and police standing by. (International)

From Our Schools Come New Leaders

Agriculture looks forward with confidence to tomorrow because its youth is being trained properly today.

Our United States public school system has taught scientific agriculture to millions of boys and girls in the vocational agriculture courses of nearly 10,000 rural high schools. Here students learn the improvement and proper use of the soil which is our basic wealth; how to produce ton liters of pork in less than six months; the care and repair of farm machinery; and many other vital things.

Such studies create an interest in research and this is important—for scientific research is vital in agriculture and other industries. Science has been back of the development of modern farm machinery; of cows that produce 15,000 pounds of milk; hybrid corn; breeds of beef cattle, hogs and sheep capable of converting feed into meat and fiber economically and speedily. Research in the science of agriculture is a major national resource which has contributed largely to the high standard of American living.

MEAT BUYING CUSTOMS

Bostonians like beef from heavy steers. St. Louisans prefer beef from light ones. It is of interest to livestock producers and meat packers that taste, money-to-spend, seasons, beliefs and habits all affect meat buying customs in different parts of the United States. Our new 16 mm. moving picture sound film, animated and in color, "MEAT BUYING CUSTOMS," explains these differences. Interesting for lodge, grange, school or church shows, and farm and livestock meetings. You pay only transportation one way. Write to Department 128, Swift & Company, Union Stock Yards, Chicago 9, Illinois.

A RECORD TO BEAT

Who will be America's Star Farmer of 1946? He'll have to be good to beat the record of Gordon Eichhorn of Marion County, Ohio, who won this top award of the Future Farmers of America at their 1945 National Convention last fall. A high school freshman in 1939 with one sow, two steers and 26 sheep, Gordon now has 60 hogs, 80 sheep, 1,500 chickens, land and equipment for a total net worth of more than $8,300. He farms his own land, is partner with his dad on 186 acres, and rents from his neighbors 96 acres more on which he raises corn, alfalfa, small grains and clover.

PROVIDE PLenty OF WATER FOR DAIRY COWS

By D. R. THOMPSON
Head, Department of Dairy Husbandry
University of Idaho, College of Agriculture

Water is practically always inexpensive and abundant, as compared to feed and labor, but nevertheless it is absolutely essential for profitable dairying.

The amount of water that a dairy cow will drink depends largely upon the size of the cow, the amount of milk produced, the type of feed consumed, and the atmospheric temperature. Milking cows need 4.0 to 5.5 pounds of water for each pound of milk produced.

Whether dairy cows are on pasture or in the barn, or are dry or milking, free access to clean water at all times produces the best results. Free access to water, in general, increases milk production over that secured when cows are watered either twice or once daily.

During the winter, or severe weather, milking cows should be watered indoors or under shelter where there is a comfortable atmosphere. If it is necessary for cows to drink from an outdoor tank, it is advisable to warm the water during very cold weather so that they will drink sufficient for their needs.

FEEDING EARLY-LAMBING EWES

To develop good milk-producing ewes, and therefore good early lambs, winter feeding is important. Feed them plenty of top-quality legume hay and just enough grain to keep them in good condition, gaining a little weight. And don't forget exercise. It makes lambing easier and helps save a higher percentage of lambs.

MEAT STRIKES

A wave of labor strikes was forecast months ago by expert observers, and it has seemed imminent since the turn of the year. But it cannot be said that there is any logical reason for such domestic warfare, especially when the nation has just emerged from two great wars. What is needed is, in Lincoln's famous words, "to bind up the nation's wounds." And especially right now, not to interfere with the nation's food supply.

Individuals and groups are regarded in this free country as having "a right to strike," and such rights are recognized legally. There is no power to compel a man to work, in peace time, if he doesn't want to. But there are moral rights and responsibilities which should be recognized by all loyal citizens, whether employers or workmen. And there is ample machinery provided whereby "economic warfare" can be handled in civilized ways, without resorting either to violence or destructive idleness.

If this nation is ever going to handle its economic and industrial problems rationally, this is a good time to start.

TOWNS AND MEN

LISTEN and learn. There is a lot of worthless stuff dispensed over the air nowadays, but also a lot of ideas worth thinking about. On a recent Sunday a couple of ingenious and reckless prophets were waking up lazy minds with a stock of ideas like these.

There ought to be more inventiveness shown in the establishment and operation of cities, instead of just letting them develop in any old way. And a lot of them ought to be "dispersed" in order to develop more intelligent and convenient systems.

An airport, for example, one reformer argued, instead of being stuck away somewhere outside of town, should be located right in the heart of a town, with everything made convenient for getting up and down and in and around. Farm and city should be united to a degree hardly ever yet seen or contemplated and real money should be spent on these points.

There should be a system of helicopters used for convenience in getting in and out, without interfering with local or central traffic. Fruits should be delivered in airplanes. And most surprising of all, the farmer should make himself over into a "city man", dressing and behaving so much like familiar and comfortable office men that he couldn't be distinguished from any other well-groomed type, in the street or offices. We might come to it, before many years. In fact, it has already begun.

Washington Traffic Signs
Confuse, Annoy Columnist

Because Sign Didn't Tell
Truth Writer Is Fined $3

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—There are things about Washington, things that—
Well, for example, there's the traffic problem. Three days in a row I've tried to drive down town for lunch. Three days in a row I couldn't find a parking place anywhere. "Full," "Full," said the big boards set contrarily across the entrances to parking lots. After half an hour of this fruitless trailing and snubbing, I turned the car north by northwest three days in a row and returned to the old home place to eat a sandwich off the card table. Why didn't I go down town in a bus or street car? Because I've had the flu and I didn't feel strong enough to stand up in a moving mob scene. Couldn't get that show dog stance required for streetcar and bus riders to keep from falling on the face on the wind-swept, brakeless curves.

Yesterday I started down town again—for lunch. I got the lunch, a parking place and a ticket. The last was the gift of the metropolitan police. It wasn't my fault I got the ticket. It was merely my reward for believing in signs.

For when I saw a nice new sign on I street, opposite the Army and Navy club, saying in dashing black type on brilliant gold, "No parking between 2 and 8 a. m." I naturally thought it was permissible to park there at other hours.

I was wrong. I was wrong because I should have driven the car down to the end of the block. There I would have seen the gold and black sign supplemented by another sign saying something about never parking here at any time now. That the second sign

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Maybe you will say I am crazy, but its a fact—

When congress left here for Christmas, President Truman's proposal for fact-finding and cooling-off on strikes was being scuttled by the CIO—New Dealing congressmen.

Their Murray of Montana, as chairman of the senate labor committee, did not take up the plan before the holidays as Mr. Truman had urged. CIO people called it "slavery".

Now the condition and the words are running exactly opposite. Murray strangely let leak from his office certain letters from his constituents showing overwhelming support for fact-finding, and has opened his committee hearings on it, while some others in the CIO—New Deal clique are saying fact-finding would not be too bad.

The silent, perplexed bulk of congress, conversely, is showing unmistakable signs that the Truman solution has lost ground outside the labor groups during the recess.

Behind this Christmas double-miracle of politics lay a plain unanswerable disclosure of the fact-roots of the labor-management issue. Since Christmas CIO has reversed itself in the General Motors case, and accepted the 1.75 per cent pay raise which fact-finding proposed, but the company had turned against the plan when Mr. Truman's fact-ferreters wanted to let the union in on their private business profits secrets (whatever these may be, beyond the filed public records.)

This new opposition to fact-finding has not been vociferous in announcing or explaining its positions, at least in congress. My information on this turn is based on two points particularly:

(a) The President, amendable to political influences, of which the unions are most potent, can appoint anyone he chooses in particular cases and thus assure just about the result he wants, and (b) such a system will work the union way inevitably by disclosing company financial secrets to the union, but no union financial secrets to the company.

Thus, when you arrive at these root-facts of the matter, you can plainly see the difficulties of establishing a fair or effective solution of a national crisis. The same solution, which was "slavery" to labor three weeks ago, has become "meatballs" to some extent today. (Labor has not lost a fact-finding case, a congressman who went into the matter tells me.)

The judicial basis of fact-finding (the railroad brotherhoods' experience of 13 years of just, amicable settlements with only one strike) therefore is losing ground.

What then? Well, it appears if anything at all is done, a fact-finding program will be enacted, but amendments are threatened, the nature of which are not acceptable to labor. Thus labor is still stalling the Truman plan.

Still threatening are the amendments predicted in this column published December 20, for preventing political donations by unions, preventing the breaking of contracts at will and steps to establish union responsibility otherwise commensurate with its power.

Deafness in Adults From Early Neglect

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT HAS been found that most of the cases of long-continued deafness in adults have come from unrecognized and untreated conditions starting in childhood, although some cases are hereditary. Had these conditions been properly treated in their early stages, many persons who are now severely handicapped because of hearing difficulty would have escaped severe trouble.

According to Doctors Edward B. D. Neuhouser and Charles F. Ferguson of Harvard Medical School, if children in the elementary school were given yearly nose and throat examinations, and then if proper treatment were carried out for defects discovered, there would be in the next generation a 50 per cent reduction of adult cases of deafness.

Deafness Estimate
It has been estimated that there are about fifteen million deaf persons in the United States and so, if this remarkable result were attained, a tremendous number of persons would be rescued from lifelong deafness.

Many more cases of deafness are being discovered nowadays because of the use of a new instrument known as an audiometer in schools, clinics, hospitals and doctors' offices. This instrument makes it possible to detect deafness. One form of deafness is known as conductive deafness, and it is believed that loss of ability to hear high tones is often the earliest sign of this type of hearing disturbance. In addition, the difficulty occurs because of partial blocking of the opening of the eustachian tubes by an overgrowth of lymphoid tissue in the throat. The eustachian tubes lead from the throat to the middle part of the ear.

Free Opening

The restoring of a free opening through the eustachian tubes often results in a rapid return to normal hearing. In treating conductive deafness, removal of the tonsils and adenoids has been tried, often with excellent results. However, in many instances in which the adenoids are removed, they tend to grow in again.

Doctors Neuhouser and Ferguson believe that treatment with the X-ray to get rid of the overgrowth of lymphoid tissue will often give much better results than surgical removal of the tonsils and adenoids.

STARS SAY—

For Friday, January 18

ON THIS day, the use of ingenuity and skill outside the regular techniques and procedures may result in putting over certain clever, original, perhaps startling or dramatic propositions or ventures, according to the testimony of the outer planets. The mentality is keyed to the unusual, strange and experimental, in which "hunches" inspiration, intuition or other unusual leads are of surprising direction and significance. The new, bizarre, idealistic might be expected to develop realistic denouements, probably spectacular.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which unusual, irregular, unconventional and unorthodox procedures or techniques are likely to unfold along lines of the novel, eccentric or thrilling, in which inner leads, intuitions, hunches, inspirations or other forms of creative urges should launch practical and sound realism both workable and utilitarian. Daring, originality and experimentalism should yield alluring propositions with surprising profit and adventure.

A child born on this day should possess unusual skill, inventive genius, with intuitions and inner urges developing into definitely realistic and workable efforts inspired by keen ideals.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

CAPTAIN HARRISS tossed off his drink, put the glass down beside the bottle, straddled the chair again. His opaque eyes looked into Tuck's. "What did you want to see me about?"

"On last Thursday evening you visited your ex-wife, Victoria Hime. Her husband died that same night in rather unusual circumstances. I came to see if you could throw any light on a few little matters."

"Harris' face did not change much. His brows raised by the fraction of an inch. "I never saw the guy," he said flatly.

Tuck nodded. "I know that."

"What did he die of?"

"Poison."

"Yes. According to what we've been able to learn, this poison was either administered accidentally by the servant who prepared the dinner which he ate shortly after returning home, or else he was murdered."

Harris reflected. "There was no servant around when I was there," he said.

"No. The meal was prepared by her the evening before. Mrs. Hime then heated and served it."

"I see," Harris rose, took a cigarette from the pack lying on the dresser near the whiskey, lit it, waved out the match, threw it into the wastebasket beside the dresser.

"What does this have to do with me?" he asked.

"You were married to Mrs. Hime for a year, from 1933 to 1934," Tuck said.

"That's true, but scarcely relevant."

"What was your reason for visiting her last Thursday evening? I understand it had been ten years since you last saw each other."

"I visited her because I wanted to see her again. I was given a short leave before starting on my new assignment. I decided to spend it in Hollywood. I decided to look Victoria up while I was here."

"Nothing unusual occurred during your visit to her?"

"Nothing."

"You remained alone in the house while she went to fetch her husband whose car had broken down."

"That's right."

"Why?"

"I wanted to meet her husband."

"But you left before they returned."

"Right."

"Why?"

"I changed my mind about wanting to meet him."

"You left the house at about what time?"

"At about a quarter to eight. I'm not sure of the exact time."

"While you were there, did you enter the kitchen?"

"Yes."

"Did you happen to notice that one of the green canisters on the sideboard at right angles to the sink contained ant poison?"

"I did not."

"You saw the canisters?"

"I saw them, yes. They face you as you come in the door."

"You did not notice that the second one from the end, nearest the sink, had on its side a white label with a red edge on which had been lettered in ink the words 'Ant Poison'?"

"No."

"Was there anything out of the ordinary about Mrs. Hime's attitude when you saw her?"

"Captain Harris stood up. He went to the radio again and turned it on, softly. After the tag end of an announcement in Spanish, another record began to play. It was the same woman singing.

"No, there was nothing out of the ordinary about Victoria," said Captain Harris. He seemed almost to be smiling under the heavy mustache.

He added: "Taking into account the fact that she is, by and large, the most extraordinary woman I have ever known."

"Did she say anything to you about her husband?"

"Nothing except his name."

"Did she say anything to you about a young actress named Moira Hastings?"

Harris cocked his head. "Nothing." He walked to the chair again, again straddled it. "Let me ask you one or two questions, just to get a few things straight in my mind. When was Hime poisoned? That is, when did he eat whatever contained the poison that killed him?"

"A short time before, or during, or after dinner."

"Ah," said Harris. "Do you know what poison killed him?"

"Sodium fluoride."

At this Harris reacted. His head went slowly and stiffly back. "So?" he said softly. His eyes were alert now, more alive. "The ant powder."

Tuck said: "Not many people know that most ant poisons contain sodium fluoride as the basic ingredient, Captain Harris."

Captain Harris said: "Did you happen to read Victoria's book 'Ina Hart'?"

Tuck nodded.

"So did I." After a pause, asked: "Who is this Moira Hastings you mentioned?"

"A young actress. Mr. Hime was a film producer."

"Of course," said Tuck, "there's nothing tangible to disprove it. The fact that the man died as a result of carelessness on the part of the servant. Nothing, really, at all. Sh of course, denies such an accident that proves nothing. There seen to be no possible motive on anyone's part for murdering Mr. Hime. There is, however, the annoying matter of opportunity. Besides the servant, four people had the opportunity to use that poison in the kitchen. The actress, Miss Hastings who had tea with Mrs. Hime. Her friend, Bernice Saxe. . . ."

"Bernice," said Harris. "Is she around? Good old Bernice."

"Yourself . . ."

Harris laughed, his white teeth showing suddenly and ferocious under his mustache. "Hell's bells," he said.

"And Mrs. Hime."

Sawn Harris sobered abruptly. He went to the dresser, picked up the bottle, looked at it, put it down with a click. He turned, leaning against the dresser on his elbows, his feet crossed in front of him and supporting his weight. The voice of the singer was muted and passionate in the background. Harris looked up at Tuck, his bold dark face brooding and quiet. He jerked his close-cropped head in the direction of the radio. "I read about her death in this morning's paper. A few lines. She was a great singer. She took dope, she drank too much, she had a cruel, ugly, primitive face, but when she sang she was great and you were great, listening to her. She always loved men who were not good to her. She always said that one day she would kill herself. All Latin threats, that's a form of self-expression with them. Whenever she told me that, three years ago in Mexico City, I laughed at her. I didn't believe it. I knew it was impossible."

He stood there silent for a moment, listening to the recording of the dead woman's voice. He spoke very quietly.

"Don't ask me whether I think Victoria could have killed her husband. I don't know."

After the door closed behind Tuck the singer's passionate voice grew louder. Harris had turned up the radio as high as possible. Tuck left him listening to the voice of the woman who was dead.

YOU'RE TELLING ME!

THE HOUSING situation is so tough John Mason, Central Press writer-editor, plans to move into a chicken house. He's asking the feathered population to move not over but out.

When other houseless newsmen heard about it they had to admit that Mason had scored a coop.

At the moment the Maison Mason has more hens in it than does the National Association of Spinster Societies and Old Maids' Clubs.

Unlike other heads of families moving into new homes Johnny doesn't have to worry about how he is going to feather his nest.

In fact, the place is so full of feathers at the moment that a chance sneeze turns it into a technicolor version of the blizzard of '88.

Johnny has already drunk a toast to his new quack shack. Naturally, it was Three Feathers.

What Mason is afraid of is that he's dispossessed the chickens from the first floor and the ducks that are in the basement he won't be able to look at an egg without having a guilty conscience.

OBEY YOUR DIRECTIONS

IT IS NEARLY always wise to lead the suit bid by your partner, when an opponent gets into No Trumps, unless you have a really good lead of your own. That means a five-card suit which looks established plus a probable side entry or so lacking that, you will generally profit from opening your partner's suit if you have as many as two cards of it, and sometimes if you have only one.

South decided that, in spite of his partner's diamond bid, the "smart" thing to do was to lead the unbid major. So he opened the heart 4, which East got with the ♠.

The spade 7 was led to the 10 ♠ and A ♠ and North, convinced that it was now too late for diamond leads to pay, returned the club 2. The ♣ won that and the spade 4 was led to the K ♠, followed by the 8 to the 9, setting up the remainder in dummy. North returned the club 5 to the J ♠, whereupon East with impunity led North's suit, the diamond Q. The K took that, but it was the last trick for the defense. The club return to the A ♠ followed by the diamond J and A ♠, heart A and two established spades, to give East an extra trick.

If South had properly followed North's lead-directing diamond bid, normal play would have given that trick to the K ♠, the second trick to the diamond Q, third to the spade A, fourth to the diamond A, fifth to the spade Q, sixth to the spade 9 and the next two tricks to established diamonds, beating the contract a trick.

PERFECT MATES HARD TO FIND

Poll Reveals Chief Grips Men And Women Of Nation Have

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Take it from the guys and gals who should know — perfect marriage mates are few and far between.

The Woman's Home Companion magazine conducted a nationwide poll of husbands and wives to discover their chief gripes against their marriage partners.

The wives listed 27 major complaints. These husbands were less critical. They found only 20.

The five husbandly traits most irritating to wives:

1. They take wives for granted and are not affectionate or attentive.

2. They don't pick up their clothes or take care of their belongings.

3. They never help around the house.

4. They're late for meals and dates.

5. They are bossy and inconsiderate or they are bossy and have superiority complexes.

The husbands said the worst things about wives are:

1. They nag.

2. They talk too much.

3. They're late.

4. They're not tidy housekeepers.

5. They're careless in personal appearance or their personal mannerisms, such as toying with rings, get on their husband's nerves.

Wives under 25 fretted most about inattentiveness. Wives between 25 and 34 were concerned chiefly with husbands who won't help with the children and the house.

LAUD BLIND IRONWORKER

PONTIAC, Mich. (U.P.)—Total blindness is a minor handicap to Arnet Lloyd Parker, 40, coremaker at an iron foundry here.

Although only on the job a couple of weeks, Parker already is able to keep up with the average worker, and company officials say he will become one of the speediest in the plant.

A resident of Detroit, he commutes the 25 miles each way without any trouble. His sight was lost in an industrial mishap.

WORDS OF THE WISE

We should ever have it fixed in our memories that, by the character of those whom we choose for our friends, our own is likely to be formed, and will certainly be judged by the world.

—(Blair)

It would seem that indolence itself would incline a person to be honest, as it requires infinitely greater pains and contrivance to be a knave.

DIAPER SERVICE IS COMPLICATED

Serviceman Can Run Into Many Troubles In Baby Pants Business

BY ROBERT RICHARDS

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Keep a hand on your safety pins, fellows, because it looks as if Uncle Sam might be all wet on this postwar diaper laundry business.

It may be a small business but, as the National Institute of Diaper Services points out, it covers a mighty vital territory.

There's more to the business than meets the eye, and the institute wants every ex-serviceman to know what he's doing when he decides to convert his cash into diapers for other people's babies.

Apparently many a veteran has decided that he wants to plunge into the business, because the institute has been flooded with queries from all over the United States.

The department of commerce estimated in its official pamphlet that a diaper service can be started in your own hometown for as little as $3,000. The diaper service people, at a press conference, indicated that you might get started but you wouldn't go far.

They call it more like $15,000 to $25,000.

And President John Jones pointed out that the field is limited. There aren't many more than 100 cities in the entire nation that will support a regular diaper service.

Jones estimated that a town must have a population of 100,000, with an estimated 2,000 births yearly, before the diaper man can hope to be a success.

But he said that he was ready to do all he can to help any venturesome serviceman get started on the right foot.

"We already have more than 1,000 letters from servicemen asking about the business," he said, "and daily we get more."

Before any beginner can join the diaper institute, however, he must establish himself as a "going concern" and also his diapers must pass chemical tests in the institute's laboratories.

W. R. Gause, who operates in Memphis, Tenn., was on hand to explain beginner's pitfalls.

"You just can't consider a diaper as an ordinary piece of cloth, like a napkin," Gause said. "No sir, it's got a personality, and it's up to you to develop it in the right way."

Otherwise, raise mothers call you up and complain because the things are folded correctly.

Gause said when he first started out, for instance, there were many women customers who never had even seen a diaper before.

"So you have to use the old bean, and two safety pins," he said. "I didn't know much more than they did, but I just said, 'look, this is the way you do it.' And, somehow, everything turned out all right."

He said that any serviceman entering the diaper business might as well make up his mind to it—he just must learn the business from the bottom up.

Mrs. Emerson Downing, supervisor of art education for city public schools, was the speaker at the meeting of the Rotary Club in Pickaway Arms Thursday.

Mrs. Downing exhibited several art pieces that had been made by her pupils and made an interesting talk on art and opportunities in the field.

She explained the various kinds of art and mentioned specific types of commercial art such as comics, trade labels, trade names and advertisements, for which artists are paid large salaries for creating.

Mrs. Downing also explained the large part that art played during the war and mentioned the artist-created government posters as an example of art's contribution to the war effort.

Many industries, magazines, newspapers, moving picture companies and wearing apparel concerns invest fortunes in art, Mrs. Downing explained.

ERC MEN MAY RE-ENLIST AT PRESENT RANK

Lt. Col. Hoermann of the Columbus Army Recruiting Station stated today that a new War Department directive now permits members of the Army Enlisted Reserve Corps to request discharge from the Reserve for the purpose of reenlisting in the Regular Army in their present ERC grade provided the enlistment is effected on or before January 31. "This," said Lt. Col. Hoermann, "is an especially attractive offer, and every former soldier who is a member of the ERC will want to know about it."

After the January 31 deadline, Lt. Col. Hoermann pointed out, ERC members will be enlisted only in the seventh grade (private), and they will have to buck their way back up the promotion ladder to their former grade.
